Welcome to the Golden Age of Online Journalism: How To Make a Living Writing on the Web

A Presentation by Jason Steele

Monday, October 15, 2018 - 5:30 - 7 p.m.

Free and open to the public!

Ten years ago, Jason got bored at work and started writing for fun. On a whim, he searched to see if anyone would pay him to write online. Eventually, he found himself making enough money contributing to outlets that he was able to become a full time journalist in 2011. Today, Jason is one of the leading authorities on credit cards and award travel and a highly sought after writer. He'll share what he's learned along his journey.

Jason contributes to many of the top travel and personal finance websites, and his work has been featured in mainstream outlets, such as Yahoo! Finance, MSN Money and Business Insider. As an expert in the industry, Jason has been quoted in mainstream sources like USA Today, the Washington Post and Bloomberg Business. Jason is also the producer of CardCon, the annual conference for credit and credit card media. Jason lives in Denver with his wife and three children.

"Children and Deportation" with Dr. Maria Uribe

Saturday, October 20, 10 - Noon;

$12 - RSVP by Wednesday, October 18 to Joey Porcelli, gortimer@msn.com

Dr. Maria Uribe is Senior Instructor at the School of Education and Human Development at the University of Colorado Denver, and author of Todos Vamos A Estar Bien (We're Going to Be Alright).

As many as fifteen thousand children in the United States are placed in foster care due to detainment or deportation of a parent. The placement of children in protective care usually lasts as long as the legal proceedings, which could take months. Author Maria Uribe wrote Todos Vamos A Estar Bien (We're Going to Be Alright) after witnessing a four year-old crying in a classroom with worry about whether her family was in danger of deportation. Uribe thought long and hard about how a teacher might be able to help. Her illustrated children's book addresses the issues children of undocumented immigrants face. Uribe says, "As parents and educators, we can help all children understand what the children of undocumented immigrants are going through. We hope this book will help them see these children as very like them; with loving families, hopes, and dreams."

"Harvey," by Mary Coyle Chase performed by Phamaly Theater Company

Special DWPC theater event!

Sunday, October 28, 2018

Play: Olin Hotel 1420 Logan Street - 2:00 p.m.

After Theater Pizza Party at DWPC: 4:30 p.m.

We have entered as strangers...soon we have friends.

The affable Elwood P. Dowd has developed a life of contentment that he shares with his best friend: a 6-foot-tall pooka rabbit. But his eccentric ways are increasingly threatening to his sister's social aspirations, and she resolves to have him committed to a sanitarium -- until plans go awry and she ends committed instead. The play won the 1945 Pulitzer Prize, and in 1950 was an Oscar-nominated film starring James Stewart. This classic comedy challenges our assumptions of what - and who - is normal, and whether that's something we want to be anyhow.

Mary Coyle Chase,
Harvey, and James
Stewart, 1950

Join the fun, as we honor our star DWPC past member, Rocky Mountain News reporter and playwright Mary Coyle Chase (1906-1981), and our distinguished DWPC literary heritage, by attending this exciting new production of "Harvey." We'll enjoy the matinee performance, then re-convene at the DWPC clubhouse 1 block away for after theater food, fun, and conversation.

It's two-step process!
